Fribay, August 5—6 materially to sustain prices; but even with this the de-preciation was steady from the opening to the close From the large purchases of Perker Vein on time, buyer's op-tion, we should think the bears might soon flad themselves in a tight place, if they were not particularly cau-tious in their operations. Railroad stocks appear to be in bad odor, and they are rapidly changing hands. It has been thoroughly demonstrated that they are bank-rupt and rotten in their fluances, to the very core; and those who have lived so long upon fatth and hope have abandoned all, and realized the best market price. A company has just been erganized to build a railroad from Cincianati to Indianapolis, along the Whitewater valley. The dispute as te whether the road should go through Lamel, or by way of Metamora to Rushville, has been settled, by leaving the location of the route to the engineers, who are to select the shortest, cheapest, and heat route.

There is already laid tween New Albany and Historiegion 78 miles of track between New Albany and Michigan 78 miles of track between Crawfordsville and Lafayette, 28 miles; and be-tween Lafayette and Michigan City, 67 miles—making in all 172 miles, and leaving 114 miles still to lay. It is ex-pected that the whole will be completed by May Let, 1854. The entire cost of the read, with equipments, depots, &c. is put down at $5,000 900; to finish which they have capi-tal stock, $2,216,000; bonds issued, in all, $5,000,000; making $6,210,000. The amount expended thus far has been $4,004,689. This road is simply an extension of the Michigan Central to the Ohio river, and is constructed by the great influence of that company.

The Chicago and Rock Island Railroad was opened on

No essential alteration has occurred in the position of the dry goods traffic since this day week. The country jobbers, more especially these from the West and Southhave, so far, been received from Northern merchants, who—thanks to the matchless facilities of communication hurry to reach New York thus early in the season. We are, nevertheless, a little surprised to learn of their tardiare, nevertheless, a little surprised to learn of their tardinness just now, when, though goods are abundant, they are dear, and yet very apt to appreciate. We presume that they have been unavoidably detained, partly by the necessity of winding up the spring business, and partly by preparations for visiting this city, whither, in consequence of the attractions of the Crystal Palace, most of them will be accompanied by their families. Their absence, however, is not likely to be prolonged, as the autumn's progress must drive them into us. When they do arrive they will greatly augment the activity that at autumn's progress must drive them into us. When they do arrive they will greatly augment the activity that at present characterises the trade, and contribute to the realization of the hopes generally entertained by factors, who think that as our wants have been so rapidly enlarged, even the unusually weighty quantity of goods now here and ordered for future delivery is apt to prove ly prices are sure to be supported, if not improved. We can testify that the fall campaign was never commenced under more favorable auspices, and should ordinary skill Woollens are more inquired for, particularly by merchants from the interior, and though the imperfect stocks, both as regards quantity and variety, and the enhanced pretensions of owners, seriously obstruct the trade in such, a good business has been transacted there in during the past week, which may be looked upon as the first of a vigorous season. We have never witnessed such a thorough reliance upon the future presperity of this branch of commerce, among manufacturers and holders generally, as is now perceptible. The circuestatances out of which it has grown are known to all our readers, and it therefore is unascessary for us to recount them. How long it may be sustained, and in what manner it is most likely to result, are yet matters of uncertainty. But, unless affairs alier greatly, we are convinced that it will last throughout the fail, and doubtless term last as satisfacterily as those who share it can reasonably wish, leaving all parties in good spirits at the close of this year. Blankels are in better request at the advanced prices. Cassimeres sell freely and well. There is a medicate inquiry for cloths, which are rather sparingly tendered, though unimproved in value. Flaannels command a readier market, at asking rates. Jeans are a little more active, but not dearer. Desirable makes of lineys are much needed at 22c. a 20; less saleable kinds being 20c. a 21c. Mous. delaines attract increased attention, and realize full quotations. Sainets are in poor supply and good demand, without variation in price. There is considerable azimation in tweeds, which are firm and uniform.

The movements in foreign goods have been decidedly more extensive during the past than the praceding week. Continental abrics especially have been operated in with warked freedom. Seasonable dress goods are the most sought after. The supply is remarkably large and fine. We notice in it a predominance of faucy articles, the amount of staple manufactures being musually light, theugh these are ever th nations shame, which might be removed it our laug-cants, as a class, possessed half the intelligence or enter-prize (it is difficult to say which is most lacking) with which they are credited. We have of a tew parties who have really and deservedly attained success in this line, and it is for this reason that we think it quite reasible for all, or nearly all, to reach the same geal. English cottons, and Scotch and Irish linear are moderately active and steady in price. We can note no important change is other commodities.
